RESOLUTION.

New Delhi, the 1st March 1944.

No. TRA-I-1403/6.—Soon after the out-break of the war, the Government of India realised that the available supply of technical personnel would prove insufficient for the needs of the technical branches of the Defence Services, of Ordnance and munitions factories, and of private industry engaged on war production. A scheme for the intensive training of semi-skilled personnel was, therefore, inaugurated 3 years ago. Since then over 63,000 men have been trained of whom 52,000 have joined the technical branches of the Defence Services and 3,000 have gone into Ordnance factories. Civil industries have not, however, absorbed these trainees on any large scale and their expansion has probably been supported by recruitment from the ordinary market and/or by their own training schemes. Railways and Ship-building industries have also their own apprenticeship schemes. The Technical Training Scheme of the Government of India has demonstrated that, with intensive training semi-skilled men can be trained for all industries and the standard of such men, after from 6 to 8 months' training, is at least upto, if not above, the standard reached under ordinary peace-time apprenticeship schemes of two to three years duration. It is probable that if training imparted under the Technical Training Scheme is supplemented by further "biassed" training, the final product will be more acceptable to employers.

2. For some time past, the Government of India have had under their consideration the problem of adjusting the Technical Training Scheme to the war-time needs of civil industry, and have now decided to set up an Advisory Committee for this purpose. The function of this Committee will be to review the existing methods and syllabuses of training under the Technical Training Scheme and to advise how it should be adjusted to meet the present day needs of industry. It will also advise Government as to how Government trainees may be utilised for dilution and upgrading, so that skilled and highly skilled men can be released for more important jobs, which the less skilled workmen are unable to perform.

3. The Advisory Committee will be composed of four representatives of private engineering employers, one representative each of Ordnance factories, Railway Board and Ship-building Industry, and a senior Chairman of a National Service Labour Tribunal. The Chairman of the committee will be the Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Labour, and the Vice-Chairman will be the Director of Training, Department of Labour.

Order.—Ordered that the foregoing Resolution shall be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL

Calcutta, the 20th March 1944.

Second Forecast of the Wheat crop of Bengal, 1943-44.

(Note.—On an average of five years ending 1941-42, the area under wheat crop in Bengal has represented some 0·5 per cent. of the total area under wheat in India. The ratio of irrigated wheat acreage to total wheat acreage (a) in British India and (b) in the territory now reported on has, in the five years ending 1941-42, averaged (a) 47·5 and (b) 7·4, respectively.)

Character of the season.—Since the submission of the first forecast in January last the weather conditions have, on the whole, been favourable for the growth of the crop though some damages have been reported from certain places due to hailstorm and drought at sowing time.

Acreage.—According to the estimates of the District Officers the total area sown is 186,600 this year against 175,700 and 178,600 acres in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

Outturn.—The average provincial outturn as worked out from the district estimates is 77 per cent. against 78 and 90 per cent., respectively, in the corresponding and final forecasts of last year.

M. CARDEW, Director.
